Leveltek announces high results from stretch level line installed at its Benwood, WV facility

Benwood, WV - Leveltek is pleased to announce excellent results again this year from its stretch level, cut-to-length combination line, installed at its Benwood, WV location and fully operational for the past two years.

The company this month reported that the combination line, which can handle up to half inch thick stainless and aluminum, has given them the opportunity to provide customers with even more top quality stretch leveling services.

Leveltek CEO Mike Kelly said that the leveler has increased production capacity and continues to be an invaluable addition to their line of stretch leveling machines. "We are always focused on giving customers top service, and this leveler is another way we've been able to accomplish that goal," he said.

Leveltek ran the first coil across the 96" wide line in December of 2009, and the leveler went into full production in April of 2010.
